On Tuesday morning January 24, 2012, while in the process of removing the Sycamore tree, it became apparent to me that the structure of said tree was not extensively damaged as thought from the October snow storm. Removal of large branches and pruning of dead branches was completed to improve the structural integrity of the tree. That being stated, we at Lee's Tree Service deem that the tree is in fact a high hazard, solely do to the location and pedestrian traffic that takes place around the area. Future pruning techniques will only polong the inevitable removal.

Sincerely,

Sean Kristoferson
